

Like edible charms, exclusively crafted pieces by jeweller Gianni De Benedittis for FuturoRemoto adorned the hand-made garments in the form of blossom and fruit earrings, bread bracelets set with precious stones and platinum fork necklaces, Collier-Fourchette, intertwined with strands of gold spaghetti.

Speaking on the occasion, H.E. Paola Amadei, Italian Ambassador to Oman, said, "Fernanda Gattinoni founded Maison Gattinoni in 1946 and today, is one of the oldest and most revered brands in the international fashion arena. Gattinoni is simply an outstanding global representative for fashion and 'Made-in-Italy'. Gattinoni's presence in the Sultanate of Oman aims to not only further strengthen business and institutional relations but to also reinforce the importance of Italian fashion from a cultural and historical point of view."
